

Campus Communion Update for Diocesan Council
The Rev. Taylor Daniel
December 18, 2025

The Fall semester of 2025 has been a joyous and fruitful season for us at The College of Charleston. After a month of outreach events and meetings with new freshmen, we've added a wonderful new class to our core group, coming from a variety of states and degree programs. Our study this semester looked at bible verses that are commonly taken out of context or misunderstood and our students, whether with a background in church or without, found it profitable.

We are losing some good seniors and so need prayers that God will provide good new student leaders to take their place; there are currently several good candidates.

Our newly formed board held its first annual fundraiser, "An Evening With Campus Communion" December 4th. By God's grace, we were able to exceed our projections by a significant margin and are thus looking to head into 2026 with a budget surplus. As we told our donors on that occasion, we will be looking to use those funds to help us hire a full time female staff person. This is an urgent prayer need, as CofC is a predominantly female campus and this hire will make our outreach much more well-rounded.

We are also still looking for candidates for our two year internship, which includes a 90% tuition scholarship for the residential M-div program at Trinity Anglican Seminary in Ambridge, PA upon completion. For more information, see the job listing on our diocesan page in January 2026.
